"Old Ironsides" Goes to Sea Again

"Staunch and strong, a worthy vessel." Old Ironsides—officially known as the U. S. S. Constitution—has taken to the sea again. Pennies contributed by school children in Hope and other American communities made possible the reconditioning of the historic frigate, and it was set afloat at the Charleston, Mass., navy yard after being under construction for three years. The famous warship displayed a replica of the flag of fifteen stars and fifteen stripes which it flew when it first went into active service 132 years ago. Other flags and bunting were strung from the jury masts. New funds are being sought to finish rebuilding the vessel.

His injuries prevented the holding of the hearing this morning, but investigation will be made as soon as he has recovered. Lane, a cotton man, is much the larger and younger of the two, met Wilson, who is a retired farmer and some-time preacher, aged 74, and following a brief argument the two men exchanged blows.

Value of Station Told by Geo. Ware

Is Speaker At Rotary Club Meeting At Texarkana.

TEXARKANA, March 19.—The endless combinations of experiments in fruit and truck growing carried on by the Hope experiment station were hinted at Tuesday by George W. Ware its director, in a blackboard talk before the Rotary Club.

Pointing out that this station, operated under supervision of the University of Arkansas, is a valuable asset to the trial and error practices of thousands of farmers, he urged that agriculturists of the Texarkana region be encouraged to avail themselves of the information being developed there.

Because the soil of the 185-acre Hope farm is almost identical with the type of land prevailing in this section, results obtained there should apply with equal force around Texarkana, he said.

Urging the growth of Irish potatoes as an example, Ware illustrated the innumerable series of experiments carried on simultaneously at the station to determine scientifically and practically the kind of fertilizer, the poundage of fertilizers, the variety and source of seed, and the time of planting tending to produce profitable crops.

From 800 to 1000 pounds of fertilizer per acre should be used to get the best results from the type favored by experimentation, Ware said. "Too much can be used, but the average farmer doesn't use enough," he continued.

Results of another experiment translated into dollar and cents returns were given, showing that while the planting of whole potatoes would yield the greatest production per acre, planting of halves would yield the greatest net financial return. Quarters and eighths produce lesser profits of the experiments showed, yet Ware said the average farmer plants eighths of whole potatoes.

Resolutions Lead Negroes To Court

Wrangle Over Committee Honors Followed by Police Hearing.

A "resolving party" intended to honor the late Judge James H. McCollum, which started at a negro mass meeting Sunday morning, wound up yesterday in mayor's court in a snarl of local jealousies, punctuated by charges of "drunkenness" and "sacrilege," which Mayor Ruff Boyett settled by fining two negroes $5 and costs each for disturbing the peace, and added a $50 fine to one for carrying a pistol.

The actual facts are somewhat obscured as most of the charges explained to the mayor prior to the sitting of the court could not be sustained after the hearing got under way. However, the mayor fined Dr. L. E. Eaves, negro dentist, $50 and costs for carrying a pistol and $5 and costs for disturbing the peace; and fined John Yergler, another young negro, $5 and costs for disturbing the peace.

Testimony offered in court showed that Eaves and Yergler went to the home of the Rev. Wesson, negro preacher, Monday morning, abused his wife, and said they were looking for her husband. While at the house, Eaves was said to have dropped a pistol. This was verified by several negro witnesses, and proved to be the outstanding testimony upon which the mayor decided the case.

Charges launched by Eaves and Yergler prior to the court hearing unfolded a complicated story. It was alleged that when the negroes of the city held a mass meeting Sunday morning to pass suitable resolutions on the lamentable death of Judge McCollum, the drafting of the resolutions was left to Eaves and Yergler, overlooking the Rev. Wesson.

The resolutions committee duly appeared before the mass meeting in the church, and declaimed their piece with fine grace.

Sunday night, so Eaves and Yergler declared, the Rev. Wesson addressed the congregation on the subject of "Sinners and Drunkards in the Holy Pulpit."

In court, however, the Rev. Wesson denied this, saying he only preached on "Sinners."

Eaves and Yergler were defended by Luke Monroe, while U. A. Gentry represented the city.

Ed. Doheny Trial In Final Stages

Defense Introduces Witnesses to Corroborate Doheny's Testimony.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Defense in the trial of Edward L. Doheny, charged with bribery in connection with the Elk Hills Naval Oil reserve, concluded presentation testimony, and rested its case shortly before noon today.

As the trial of Edward L. Doheny, multi-millionaire, charged with bribery, drew into the final stages today, the defense introduced witnesses in an effort to corroborate the testimony given by Doheny yesterday.

The government charges Doheny with giving a bribe of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, for the award to his company the Elk Hills, California Naval Oil Reserve lease.

Doheny maintained the money was a loan to an old friend. The 73-year-old defendant attempted to show in his trial yesterday that he personally had nothing to do with the Pearl Harbor negotiations and the defense was introducing witnesses today to corroborate his testimony.

Chamber To Get Pure-Bred Cows on Local Farms

Executive Committee Meets Jordan, Kraft Corp. Manager

CHEESE PRICE BEATS Local Factory Pays More Than Creameries This Year

The solution to faster production of milk in Hempstead county depends on the importing of pure-bred cows to this territory. The executive committee of the Hope, Arkansas, Commerce decided at a meeting yesterday.

The conference was attended by C. J. Jordan, of Carlisle, Arkansas, manager of the Kraft-Plank Cheese Corporation, and local men who were instrumental in bringing the Kraft company to Hope more than a year ago.

Need Better Cows Although definite plans are not yet formed, the chamber expects to sponsor a program to bring at least 100 pure-bred cows into Hempstead county. It was successful in introducing about a dozen pure-bred cows here last November and plans to continue with farmer clubs about the county. Equally good luck is anticipated in attempting the introduction of pure-bred cows.

Better cows and more feed will be the chamber's newest slogan, supplementing the county dairy feed program which has been at work for the last year, and which led to the importing of a solid carload of soybeans for new seed last Tuesday.

44 Cents at Plant Mr. Jordan, of the Kraft company, pointed out at the conference that the milk market is steadily building up a greater advantage for the local cheese factory. Current quotations on butterfat at the cheese factory are 44 cents per pound, while creameries are offering from 30 to 32 cents.

With the crash in butter prices all over the country, the local factory has received much better support from the farmers; and milk delivered to the local Kraft factory is expected to set a new record this year.

Women's Club In Good Meeting

Selecting of Delegates To State Convention Discussed

Mrs. Aline Johnson was hostess to the Hope Business and Professional Women's Club at the Hotel Balford yesterday evening. Despite the inclement weather, there was a large attendance and the meeting was marked by much enthusiasm.

The tables were made very attractive by the use of tall vases of red buds, lighted green tapers in green holders, green nut cups and dolphin place cards on which green was a predominant color.

During the serving of a six-course dinner, Mrs. Johnson presented an interesting program, in which "Amy," the club paper, made a lively reappearance. Many had thought "Amy," long since deceased but her sparkling "remarks" effectively proved that such was not the case.

Miss Elizabeth Harrison read news items from "Amy," after which Miss Clarence Cannon gave the book review, using as her subject "Henry Drummond's 'The Greatest Thing in the World.'" The value of this preaching cannot be overestimated in our work-a-day world and were its precepts diligently practiced, much benefit would inevitably result to mankind.

Miss Emma Green, keenly observant society editor of "Amy," read the items she had gathered; Maude Lipscomb (with apologies to Ripley), read the "Believe It or Not" section, edited by Mrs. Frank Russell and we are very sure Mrs. Ripley might learn things were he to consult Mrs. Russell. She, too, has the ability to draw one's attention to things that might otherwise miss attention. In the classified ads section, a prize was offered for the best ad. Mrs. Charles Walker was the winner. Mrs. W. C. McDonald proved herself a cartoonist of no mean ability and much interest was attracted to her drawings.

Mrs. Johnson introduced Miss Forrest Ruggles who conducted a column replete with suggestions for club activities in which terse ideas for community and club welfare were presented. Among these were: the beautification of the city park and vacant lots about town; the establishment of tennis courts; street and sidewalk sanitation; traffic control for the downtown sections on Saturdays; band concerts on Saturday evenings and a charity ball each Fall to provide funds for Christmas and other worthy projects. The need for half-holidays during the summer was also mentioned and its value enlarged upon.

The increase of the educational funds of the club was advocated, and (Continued on page six)

News Today--Pictures Tomorrow

THERE was a rather remarkable picture on the front page of yesterday's Star. It was the picture of railroad coaches piled up in a wreck on the Illinois Central near Batesville, Miss. The wreck occurred Monday. The picture was in The Star office early Tuesday morning—within twenty-four hours of the accident.

The miracle by which the same news and the same pictures are broadcast to every one of the forty-eight American states every day, is generally explained by the telegraph and telephoto. But this is more remarkable even than that—it was achieved through the mere co-operation of men, using Uncle Sam's mail service.

The photo which appeared in The Star was marked "NEA Service, Memphis." NEA Service, from which The Star buys its pictures, cartoons and serial stories, has its home office in Cleveland, Ohio. There it handles all its regular pictures and features. But Cleveland is 36 hours away from Hope by regular mail service, and for Southern papers not even the telephoto would be fast enough to wire pictures to Cleveland and back again in time to make a record like that yesterday.

So NEA set up a bureau in key cities such as Memphis and Fort Worth, and requires one particular paper to broadcast news pictures originating in its territory to all the other papers subscribing to NEA in the United States. Considering that 800 daily papers subscribe to this one syndicate, it is an enormous job when something happens near one of these bureaus.

Thus, when the Illinois Central train was wrecked in Mississippi Monday morning, the Memphis bureau got photographs, made engraved plates, pressed out 800 paper mats, and mailed them to NEA memberpapers—all by Monday night. More than half the NEA papers received the pictures before NEA's home office in Cleveland got a good look at them.

Everyone is familiar with the same system applied to news stories gathered every day by the Associated Press. The Star gets telegraph news from other cities, and would be fined if it failed to report its own news in exchange.

The Associated Press is the world's greatest example of a co-operative enterprise; but we just had to mention NEA in the above connection, for while a news story may be phoned or telegraphed great distance with incredible speed it is rather unusual to have the news today and pictures tomorrow.

What the Depression Means

IF YOU doubt that the current business depression has brought some very real misery and suffering to the country you might mull over some of these figures, submitted by the Family Welfare Association of America, a federation of 234 charity and family welfare agencies.

After sending a questionnaire on unemployment to its member agencies in 100 cities, the association found that 54 agencies had to spend twice as much for relief work in January of this year as a January of 1929.

In 32 cities, the number of families needing help because of the wage earner's inability to find a job was 200 per cent greater for January, 1930, than for the same month in 1929. In January of 1929, these 32 cities had a total of 7300 families in need of help; last January they had 21,600.

"A number of the societies," says the Association's report, "stated the number of families under their care at present does not give a true picture of the unemployment situation in their respective communities, as many dependent families whose difficulties are only those of unemployment are being referred to the tax-supported public departments."

"Most family welfare societies have all they can do (and in many cases more than they can do) to assist families whose difficulties arise not only out of the present unemployment situation but from many other factors, such as chronic illness, marital maladjustments, physical and mental handicaps are other difficulties."

And a report covering four middle western cities says: "It is estimated that between 55 and 60 per cent of the relief funds for January, 1930, went for unemployment relief. There was never, in the history of the society, a month like January, 1930."

The unemployment problem, evidently, is rather serious.

The Way to a Young Man's Heart Is Sometimes Via His Sweet Tooth

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The first phase of President Hoover's program for making Washington a "model dry city" will begin when General Herbert B. Crosby, now the army's chief of cavalry, takes office as one of the District of Columbia commissioners, in charge of the police force.

Crosby's name will be sent to the Senate for confirmation late this month. Although there will be some opposition, such as that voiced by several local groups on the ground that the law provides for the appointment of a civilian, the general will resign from the army and the expectation is that the appointment will be upheld. Dry senators will not care to place themselves in the position of helping to block one of the Hoover enforcement measures.

He Means Business

The president has said that the Crosby appointment would "guarantee to the capital and the nation at large that the capital of the nation shall be free of organized crime." He had previously explained that, he offered the job to seven other persons before going to the army for a man, but no one doubts that Mr. Hoover means business and that he especially wants to cut down the liquor traffic, which has always flourished here to an unseemly degree.

Crosby's ideas on the situation here are not yet known. He is said to have been a good disciplinarian in the cavalry but has not been regarded as a martinet.

Off-hand it would seem as if anyone with an earnest determination to clean up could do considerable business in Washington. The liquor industry here could stand far more pressure than it has ever experienced without being eradicated. Few policemen are unaware of the existence of any speakeasies which may be on their beats. Most of the general run of bootleggers here have police records as a result of previous arrests and consequently may be regarded as "known." Crosby will have about 1300 policemen under him and although only a handful are authorized to make liquor law arrests they are all in a position to spot lawbreakers.

If Crosby undertakes to give the "noble experiment" a severe test in the capital, as Hoover appears to desire, he will not be hampered by the same sort of interference which nullified the enforcement efforts of those other military "dictators," General Smedley Butler of the marines in Philadelphia and General Lincoln C. Andrews, the former "czar" of national prohibition. Both Butler and Andrews, after heroic attempts, were finally driven to the woods by politicians.

Crosby, it is true, will have Congress watching him. There are members in both houses, hated rather cordially by many Washingtonians, who go out of their way to "get something on" the Washington police and their officials and who frequently make lurid speeches about the allegedly appalling prevalence of crime in our midst. But these trouble-makers are generally dry and even in the case of those who aren't the big dry majorities in Congress may reasonably be expected to support Crosby if he makes a good enforcement showing.

degrees. First think we know West Point will be after him.

The London disarmament conference seems to be an attempt to get a nation to get as many cruisers as it possibly can with the consent of the other nations.

Quake Irrigates Land, Leaves Layer of Sand

BRAWLEY, Calif., March 18.—An earthquake irrigated a cantaloupe field here recently when a temblor caused small geysers to spout five inches high over the 100-acre field owned by the S. A. Gerrard company. The water irrigated the entire field and then flooded adjacent areas before subsiding. Small sand piles were left in the wake of unusual inundation, and a beet field nearby was completely covered by new sand.

Turning the light of Truth on false and misleading statements in recent cigarette advertising

WHAT ANOTHER MANUFACTURER of cigarettes chooses to say about his product is not our affair. Even when he sees fit to misrepresent his product and leave false impressions concerning it, that still is his business—not ours.

But—when, in his advertising, he goes beyond his own product and makes false statements or leaves misleading impressions about other cigarettes—then it is time that the truth be told.

Some time ago a manufacturer of cigarettes used the following statements in his advertising:

"The extra secret heating process removes from (——) harmful irritants, corrosive acids, which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way, and which cause throat irritation and coughing."

"No matter how much or how little you pay for cigarettes you have a choice of only two general classes, and not more than two. In one class you have the billions of cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way and in the other class you have (——), the toasted cigarette, a product of modern science, a cigarette from which harmful irritants have been removed by that extra secret process described by the phrase 'It's Toasted'."

WHEN THESE STATEMENTS were first made, we assumed that they were a casual phase of that manufacturer's advertising and did not represent a deliberate and calculated policy. After making a few such statements, he abandoned this particular form of advertising. However, other statements used in his advertising came to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission on a question of their truthfulness.

As a result of the action of the Federal Trade Commission he was ordered to stop his admitted practice of using in his advertising false testimonials of non-smokers to the effect that they kept slender by smoking his brand of cigarettes, and was further ordered to stop using other fake testimonials and the specious argument that all can keep slender by smoking that brand of cigarettes. He then began to use again the form of statement quoted above or variations of it.

IF ANY MANUFACTURER chooses to say that the tobaccos he uses contain "harmful irritants, corrosive acids, that are injurious to the throat," and then to claim that these things are removed by the heat-treating process, that is his own affair. But when he tries to create the impression that it is general practice to use in cigarettes such rank tobaccos as he describes, we object to the attempted reflection on the industry.

We have never used in our blend those rank tobaccos which can be properly described as containing "harmful irritants, corrosive acids," nor do we believe that they are used by some of the other manufacturers.

If that manufacturer wishes to advertise heat treatment, calling it toasting or what-not, that is his right. But when, in so doing, he tries to create the impression that he is the only maker of cigarettes who treats tobaccos with heat, the truth again needs to be told.

The publication of a fake testimonial is no greater perversion of the truth than to imply that the heat treatment of tobaccos is an exclusive process with any single manufacturer.

THE FACT is that the use of heat treatment in the manufacture of tobacco is about the most commonplace and universally practiced method in the industry. It has long been standard practice.

We use heat treatment in its most modern and scientific application, both in the preparation and in the manufacture of those mild, fragrant, ripe tobaccos that carry their natural goodness into CAMELS.

The first CAMEL Cigarette we ever made was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of CAMELS produced since has been manufactured under heat treatment. We rely upon heat to the limits of its possibilities to make our good tobaccos better. It cannot make inferior tobaccos good.

WHETHER OR NOT a manufacturer, to have something to talk to the public about, attaches a contrivance to his heat-treating machines to catch, condense and bottle the vapors that come from them can have no more effect toward improving the tobacco than your catching and bottling the vapors that come from your teapot would have toward improving the tea in the pot.

Our own brand, CAMEL, continues to grow, but we are, nevertheless, unwilling to let these far-reaching false statements or impressions regarding the cigarette industry go uncorrected.

a grand witness, old thing!" Gigi cried blithely, hopping off Strawn's chair arm. "My turn now? I suppose I shouldn't continue to rumple the hair of a stuff old Captain of Detectives who's getting ready to go-r-rill me!"

"Not so fast, young woman!" Strawn commanded sternly. "I have not finished with your sister yet, and don't think I'm not on to the smoke screens you've been putting up!"

"Not so dumb!" Dundee grinned to himself.

"Oh!" Gigi subbed disconsolately upon an ottoman at Dundee's feet and laid her curly hair against his knee.

"As a matter of fact, Miss Clorinda," Strawn began, "Doris did not help you unness, did she?"

"I don't know what you mean!" "I mean, my dear young lady, that you did not undress until quite a while later. I mean that you put on a gold metal cloth cape over your evening dress, and stole downstairs, unlocked the back door and slipped out into the night!" Strawn told her with terrible emphasis.

CLORINDA caught her breath sharply, but did not change her pose of indolent ease. It was Gigi who cried out and pressed her hands to her cheeks.

"How do you know this?" Clorinda asked at last, in a cool, clear voice.

"You were seen," Strawn assured her. "I'm glad you see there's no use denying it. Now tell us all about that little jaunt of yours, Miss Clorinda."

"I shall tell you nothing until you have told me who saw me!" she retorted imperiously. "Remember, I have admitted nothing. I do not believe you can bring forward any witness whatsoever who will dare stand before me and—"

"There is my witness!" Strawn interrupted, pointing melodramatically to Dundee, whose face flushed scarlet with embarrassment.

"Forgive me, Miss Berkeley!" he begged, in all sincerity. "I assure you I was not spying on you. I was just about to leave the drawing room when I heard you cough slightly. I confess I peeped to see who it was, and I saw you descending the stairs. I waited until you had let yourself out the back door before going upstairs. I had been hunting for Dick. I knew he had forced Doris to agree to meet him last night, and I wanted to persuade him to abandon the adventure."

"I see," Clorinda said telly. "Dick seems to have been particularly unfortunate in his choice of a weekend guest."

"Don't, Clor!" Gigi protested brokenly. Dundee could feel the trembling of her small body against his knees, and involuntarily he laid his free left hand gently on the bright, bowed head. She reached up blindly and clung to his fingers with both her small, brown hands—desperately, as if to a life-line. Poor kid, he thought pityingly. She had fought hard to protect her sister, and she had lost. What had she known, or suspected? Oh, the scart, of course!

"Very well, then!" Clorinda capitulated suddenly. "I—had a headache. I took a long walk about the grounds. I walked over the west part of the estate first, then to the south wall, and finally around the lake."

"And were you alone on this long walk, Miss Clorinda?" Strawn asked gently, now that his witness was tractable.

"I did," Clorinda lied coolly. "And saw nothing, heard nothing to disturb your rest?"

"Absolutely nothing!"

"Well, that's that, and you made

Strawn shrugged, then began on a new tack, his voice suddenly portentous. "Miss Clorinda, I want you to search your memory very carefully before you answer this question, because it's important: Was Doris wearing lip rouge when you saw her just before 11 o'clock last night?"

"Lip rouge?" Clorinda repeated incredulously. Then, as Strawn nodded grimly, she closed her eyes as if to concentrate. At last she answered positively: "No, I am quite sure she wasn't. Doris was a perfectly trained maid. I never saw her with make-up on, when she was on duty. If she had been wearing either face rouge or lip rouge last night I am sure I should have noticed it. . . . Wait a minute! She said she was going to her room to make herself pretty for Arnold. I remember that distinctly now."

"And did you notice whether she went directly toward her room or not?"

"I—why, no. I—paid no attention."

"You don't know, then, whether she went from your rooms to your mother's, to arrange the bed and night things?" Strawn pressed.

"Oh, I'm sure she didn't," Clorinda answered more readily. "You see, she had already been to Mother's room before coming to mine. She remarked that she was all through for the night, that Mother had said she would not require her to wait up to help her get ready for bed."

Strawn and Dundee exchanged a quick, significant glance. If Clorinda Berkeley was telling the truth, she had definitely established the fact that Doris Matthews had left the lip-rouge mouth print on Mrs. Berkeley's dressing table mirror during a third visit to her mistress's room, regardless of Mrs. Berkeley's protestation that the girl was not there when she came up. A visit made after the girl had gone to her own room on the third floor to "pretty" herself for her sweetheart.

With deceptive casualness Strawn returned to the attack. "Now, Miss Clorinda, I take it that you went to bed right after Doris left your room?"

"I did," Clorinda lied coolly. "And saw nothing, heard nothing to disturb your rest?"

"Absolutely nothing!"

"Well, that's that, and you made

Mississippi Lady Says She Felt Stronger, Better After Taking Cardui.

Greenwood, Miss.—Mrs. W. D. Taylor, of 1313 Carrollton Avenue, this city, has written of her use of Cardui as follows:

"About five years ago, I was in ill health. I suffered a great deal of pain in my sides and in the lower part of my body. I was weak and nervous, and at the least noise I felt like I must scream."

"At times I would have to go to bed. My head would ache. It would take me three or four days to get over these spells."

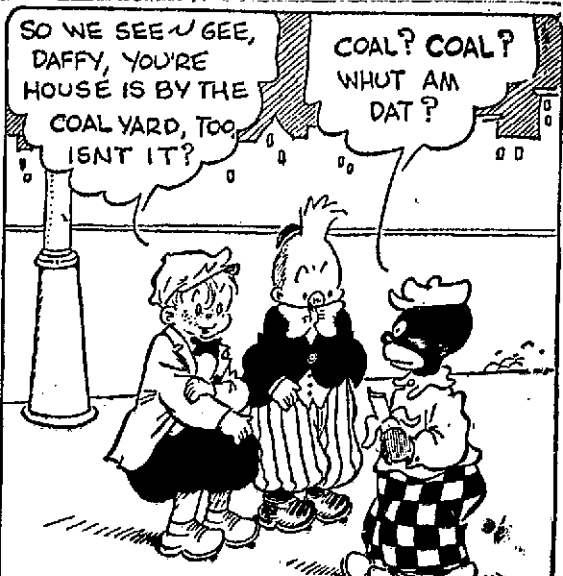

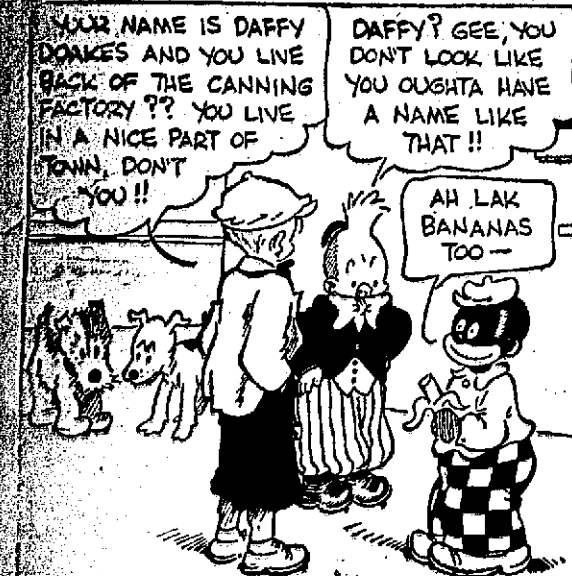

"A friend told me to take Cardui, which I did. After my first bottle, I saw some improvement. When I had taken three bottles, I felt stronger and better than I had in some time. I did not have any more of those bad spells."

"I certainly recommend Cardui." Thousands of other women recommending Cardui, after having found it of valuable assistance to them in building up their health. Cardui is extracted from medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful. Try it in your case. N-908

Bodenhamer Urges Passage of Bill

Would Relieve 84,000 Disabled Men, Commander Says.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The relief of 84,000 disabled veterans is provided in House Bill 10381, the new Veterans Committee Omnibus bill, now pending in congress, and its passage should be allowed without further delay. O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, asserts in a prepared statement made here this week.

The statement follows: "House Bill 10381, has been agreed upon, after much testimony before the Veterans committee of the House of Representatives, and approved by the committee and the Legion as the best measure in the interest of the disabled that has been devised, and it has been introduced in the House by the chairman of the committee, Royal C. Johnson. "This legislation is urgent. It has been carefully considered. It embraces nearly all the major provisions requested by the last national convention of the Legion. It is a splendid piece of constructive legislation, and its passage should not be further delayed. The Legion urged the passage of the hospital construction bill just before Christmas, as a separate piece of legislation, although that was less than half of what was needed. It urges the passage of this legislation as a separate measure upon which all are agreed, and because it is urgent Congress should let it be passed immediately, because 84,000 of our disabled comrades need the relief it provides in one of its 24 sections, and they need it now.

"EXCLUSIVE BUT NOT EXPENSIVE"
If it's new, we have it.

THESE are days when every dollar counts. The period of reckless spending is over. People are going back to the good old-fashioned principles of thrift and economy. Value is again being carefully considered.

Nowhere is this more important than in the selection of an automobile. For the purchase of a car represents a considerable investment. It should not be decided on hurriedly, but only after analyzing every important factor that concerns cost, value and performance. The time to do this is before buying—not afterward when it is too late.

ON THE basis of cost, performance and the actual comparative worth of every part, the new Ford is a value far above the price you pay. It is made of better materials and with greater care and accuracy because of the recognized efficiency and economy of Ford manufacturing methods.

The value of these methods is known and understood by millions of people. It is not generally realized, however, that these same principles of efficiency and economy are applied also to every step in the distribution of the Ford car. The low cost of selling, financing time payments, etc., means a direct saving to you of at least $50 to $75 in addition to the money saved by Ford economies in making the car. Here are three reasons why this is so.

(1) The Ford dealer does business on a smaller margin of profit because of the greater number of cars he sells. His discount or commission is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference in your favor, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

(2) The Ford charges for financing are low.

(3) No expensive extra equipment is needed when you buy a Ford. The car leaves the factory ready for use. The f.o.b. price includes a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield and an extra steel-spoke wheel, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes. Any accessories you may wish for your individual taste are sold considerably below the usual prices. None of these charges for selling, financing or accessories is marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

Get all the facts, therefore, before you buy and figure out just what you are getting for your automobile dollars. Go beyond the f.o.b. price and find out how much more you pay the dealer than the dealer pays at the factory. Analyze the used-car allowance. Compare all charges—item for item—value for value.

WHEN you do this you will have a new appreciation of what the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers are doing to keep down the cost of Ford cars. You will also know why it is possible to put so much real value into the new Ford and still retain the low price. The money you pay goes for value in the car. It is not wasted in excessive costs in manufacturing or selling.

Boys Are Held As Thieves At Nashville

NASHVILLE, March 18.—Lebour Sullivan and E. C. Honnell, Jr., white boys and two negro boys Ben Robinson and Williams Arnold were arraigned in court here Monday on a charge of burglary. The boys are accused of having broken into the Mulkey Hardware store, taking $9.33 and an automatic pistol. The boys confessed to the robbery of several other stores here. The white boys were turned over to the Juvenile Court and the negro boys held to the Grand Jury under bond of $250.

a prize to be given to the outstanding scholar of each graduating class from the High School was suggested, as was the establishment of a study course for club members. A "suggestion box," whereby individual members might suggest their plans for enlarged activities along all lines of endeavor, also was advised by Miss Ruggles.

Dr. Don Smith, president of the Board of Education, appeared before the Club and solicited their support for the erection of a High School building. "This may be brought about by the shaping of public opinion," said Dr. Smith, "and that is why I appear before you at this time."

Miss Beryl Henry, Superintendent of Schools, heartily sanctioned Dr. Smith's statements and both told of the inadequacy of the present building and the urgent need for its replacement with a structure in keeping with the demands of present day education. It has long been known that the old Garland school building must soon be torn down and replaced and the sooner this is done, the better it will be for all concerned and such a project is certainly of vital importance to every resident of Hope and Hempstead county, whether or not children are in school.

During the business session, presided over by Miss Harrison, the matter of selecting delegates to the State convention at Fayetteville, April 18 and 19, was discussed. All who could possibly do so, were urged to attend. Committee reports were received and Mrs. Snow Stuart, Personal Research chairman, took the "census" of the club.

An amendment to the constitution was voted whereby former B. & P. W. club members not now actively engaged in business or professional pursuits may retain their membership in the club, providing they operate their homes on a budget basis.

It was decided to adopt a study course and Misses Clarice Cannon, Forrest Ruggles and Mrs. Aline Johnson were appointed to arrange for this.

In keeping with the policy of business and professional women through out the land, Miss Harrison announced that ballots would be passed for the selection of the most valuable ies received so far, presages an unprecedented attendance at the forthcoming school. Many Hope housewives have already committed themselves to the attendance of all five of the lectures, and are making plans to insure their not missing a single one of the rare demonstrations conducted by this great leader and lecturer. The fact that admission is absolutely free and without obligation, and that the lectures will start at 2:30 promptly inspires The Star to warn all women planning to attend that the first to arrive will be the first seated.

Co-operating with The Star in the promotion of this great series of cooking school lectures are some of the most outstanding national food manufacturers in the nation. Intimate acquaintance with Mrs. Ihrig's remarkable background of the nutritive values of properly cooked foods, coupled with their personal contact with this gifted lecturer, have inspired their eager participation in Mrs. Ihrig's courses of home economics.

Every product used and recommended by Mrs. Ihrig has not only undergone laboratory tests at the hands of national manufacturers but has been tried out on a personal basis by this famous cookery expert in her own demonstration kitchens where the recipes appropriate to the product have been tested and re-tested in order that she might select foods of the very finest and most reliable types for sponsoring in the cooking schools she conducts.

The housewives attending Mrs. Ihrig's courses may rest assured that the specific recommendation of products introduced by Mrs. Ihrig is as well founded as the recipes she offers. Careful attention to such data is requested by the lecturer since many items that may seem small to her listeners are essential to the success of their cooking.

member of the Hope B. & P. W. club. This honor was accorded to Mrs. W. G. McDonald (Margaret Simms), who has been an outstanding leader in all activities since the organization of the club. She has served as its president, has been chairman of many important committees and is at this time attracting much attention by her work as emblem chairman. She has recently been appointed state transportation chairman.

A surprise feature of the evening was the presentation of a closed copy of "Amy" to Mrs. McDonald by Miss Harrison, and when it was opened the contents proved to be many beautiful handkerchiefs,—a token of the love bestowed upon the recipient by her co-workers.

Miss Lipscomb announced that the leader for the meeting of April 8, would be Dr. Etta Champlin, who would present a health program, at which time a number of surprises would be introduced. It is hoped that a one hundred per cent attendance may be attained for this meeting.
